

A Yes, sir, and myself.

Q Was there anything unusual occurred at supper time?

A Not that I can recollect; everything went off the same way.

Q Then after supper where did you go?

A Up to my room as I usually do; sometimes I take a book, sometimes I would have the paper and read and smoke.

Q Well, did you go out and sit on the porch with Mrs. Hall and little Frances that evening?

A I haven't any recollection of it.

MR. STUDER: Where was his room?

Q Your room was to the right of the hall as you came up the stairs?

A Let me see. I will have to put myself in imagination just so as to get it straight; my room faced directly this way out of one window and directly toward Edwin Carpenter's on the other.

Q Well, as you came up the stairs from downstairs--

A Yes, sir.

Q --did you turn to the right to go into your room?

A We will say here is the stairs; then I turned - let's see, coming up this way, then you go this way -- anyhow what I remember now is it was at the back of the house.
